To Whom It May Concern;

Paul Suchecki was hired as VTI's first video instructor in August 1985 to assist me as the Director of Education to teach the production courses for our A.A.S. Video Technology degree program.

The program required production expertise, technical knowledge of video equipment and systems, and the skills to motivate and teach students from a broad range of backgrounds.

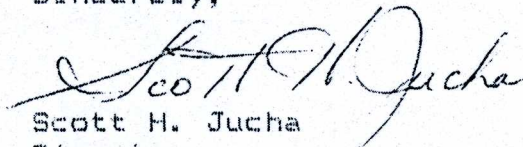

As the Director of School from February 1986 to May 1989, I had many occasions to work closely with Paul as the video students produced their own projects and engaged in extracurricular activities involving outside productions. Our students under Paul's guidance worked with a host of organizations: City and County Departments, the U.S. Naval Base in Long Beach, non-profit organizations such as Easter Seal and the National Autistic Children's Foundation, cable and broadcast stations, and numerous businesses.

Through Paul's high caliber of energy and drive, the students in his classes were able to experience an extremely comprehensive education in producing quality video. Many of our graduates working in the industry can testify to Paul's technical and artistic expertise.

We were able to display our students' talents through an opportunity negotiated by Paul. He arranged for a selection of student projects to be aired on Simmons Cable Network in Long Beach as "VTI Showcase" and then personally handled the editing and narration of the student projects into a final package.

I would appreciate greatly any service you may render Paul and strongly recommend him as an asset to any organization's staff.

Sincerely,

Scott H. Jucha
